A password is like a key. What does yours unlock?

If you have access to Brown information – whether student, payroll, donor, health, research, financial aid or similar – your password is the key to warehouses of information, which you have been authorized to view.

You are responsible for its proper use, which includes not sharing it with others.

Read about the risks of—and alternatives to—sharing at www.brown.edu/passwordsharing